Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 06 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Chilly, with scattered showers developing, heavy at times.

Today:
A cold, frosty start, but largely sunny. However, cloud and showers will develop through the day. These will be heavy at times, with a risk of hail and thunder, and some snow is possible over the Pennines and Cheviot hills. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
A few showers continuing this evening, but these should die out by midnight, allowing skies to become largely clear. Cold, with patchy frost developing by dawn. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Thursday:
Another cold but bright start on Friday. Patchy cloud developing from mid-morning, bringing scattered showers, some of which will be heavy, and perhaps wintry on higher ground. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Starting dry and bright Saturday, but persistent rain and strong winds spreading in during the afternoon. Further rain and brisk winds Sunday. Sunny spells and showers Monday, heavy at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.